SCHOOL SCHEDULE

Good or Bad for the School?

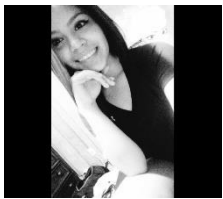

By Shastity Sandoval and Elizabeth Monnarez

Like most teachers at the school, Mr. Salas is enjoying the new schedule and is all smiles about it

During the new school year of 2016, a new class schedule was introduced to try and help not only the students, but the teachers and staff as well. As the school year started, students began to express their opinions about the new schedule. During the second week of school, students were given a survey about how they felt of the new schedule. Out of 105 students, 62% liked the new block schedule, 16% didn't appreciate it and 22% were unsure how they felt about it. They were also asked if they'd prefer to go back to having each class every day for an hour and 21% said yes, 66% said no and 13% said they were unsure. (Continued of page 2)

Alamosa SAVED!!!!

Alamosa Library Has Many Programs to Offer

Alamosa Library has many programs to people of all ages that many people are unaware of. These programs include baby story time and pre-school story time where the staff help children learn to love reading. They get them ready to read by signing songs, playing with letters, remembering names, and recognizing sight-words. Alamosa offers one-on-one computer classes that need help with technology. They can even help you join Facebook! Alamosa also helps job hunters use computers to look for jobs and utilize Lynda.com, (contined on page 3)

“I love it,” said Salas, “I think it’s great and I don’t care if the kids don’t like it because I like it... just kidding...or am I?”

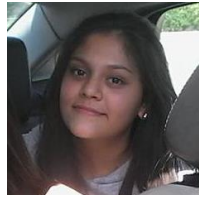

At the end of last year a student, Ernesto Lucero, gave a petition to all the students in the school asking if they would like a block schedule for the upcoming school year. Almost the entire school agreed upon having it and because of the positive feedback. Monica, our schools Director, ultimately agreed to change the schedule to a block schedule.

The start of the new schedule was rough, but day by day staff and students are getting more comfortable with how everything is coming together. The new schedule will help students in the long run because they get extra class time and help seniors get ready for their new adventures in their life ahead

Mr. T, like many students during the first two weeks of school, was confused with the new schedule change.
